

CAREERS ON COURSE

Tamara O'Neill Recognized For Outstanding Leadership

ATLANTA - February 22, 2010 – Tamara O'Neill has been named a finalist for the Turknett Leadership Character Awards. Nominated as an "Inspirator," O'Neill joins outstanding leaders across Georgia who are being honored for their wide range of manifested leadership qualities.

In its seventh year, the Turknett Leadership Character Award program partners with Kennesaw State University's Siegel Institute for Leadership, Ethics and Character. A distinguished panel of advisors incorporates the following behavioral traits in evaluating candidates for recognition: integrity, empathy, humility, emotional mastery, accountability, lack of blame, courage, self confidence and the ability to focus on the whole.

According to Karen J. Lincoln, President, LMCS, Tamara embodies the true meaning of leadership – day in and day out. "Integrity, respect, and responsibility are Tamara's guiding principles," says Lincoln. "She is truly dedicated to each person's success despite the economic and industry conditions and offers a fresh perspective filled with optimistic constructive advice."

In her role as a career advisor to senior executives, O'Neill understands the importance of multi-dimensional leadership skills in career transition and career growth. "I am honored and humbled to receive the nomination for the Inspirator Award," says O'Neill, President, Careers On Course. "I am dedicated to working with clients to assist them in fully developing all the characteristics that make a successful leader, serving as an advisor and being a true partner who is fully vested in the results."

For more information about the Turknett Leadership Character Awards, visit <http://www.leadershipcharacter.com/model.php>

About Careers On Course

Careers On Course offers professional career coaching and leadership development. With a winning combination of face-to-face tailored coaching, built-in accountability mechanisms and strategic marketing, clients are empowered to reach their career goals. The Careers On Course team brings more than 50 years of combined expertise in career coaching and leadership development and a proven track record of helping clients succeed in today's competitive environment.